Direct Primary Care Practice Opening in Washington

Dr. Jennifer Allen to Open New Freedom Family Medicine's Second Location

[Washington, MO March 3, 2020] In response to overwhelming demand, Dr. Jennifer Allen is excited to announce the opening of a second location for her direct primary care practice (DPC), New Freedom Family Medicine. Dr. Allen is looking forward to continuing to serve patients in Hermann, MO while expanding her reach to Washington, MO as well. She hopes to begin welcoming new faces in Washington as early as the first week of April 2020.

As a board certified Family physician, Dr. Allen understands what people, young and old, are seeking in a healthcare provider today. She believes that developing a genuine relationship with patients has the power to change lives. By opening a second location, Dr. Allen continues to demonstrate how affordable and accessible a DPC doctor can be—whether you are healthy or have complicated medical conditions.

What is Direct Primary Care?

Direct Primary Care is a medical payment model where patients pay the physician directly through a monthly membership. The membership fee covers most of the services a physician may provide in the office, including EKGs, urinalysis, pregnancy tests, strep tests and more. By being members of the practice, patients enjoy special discounts on medications and lab tests.

DPC benefits patients in a variety of ways. First, it breaks the cycle of dependence on health insurance companies. In today's world, most people rely on health insurance but still can't afford their medical bills. Direct primary care helps people afford healthcare with or without insurance—whichever works best for them. Second, a Direct Primary Care Physician strives to build lasting relationships with their patients. DPC physicians typically limit the number of patients that can join their practice, allowing for more time to be spent with each patient and increasing the quality of care provided.

Patients also enjoy transparent pricing when joining a DPC. Because there are no copays or insurance billing, patients aren't surprised by unexpected bills several months after receiving treatment. Plus, DPC doctors work diligently to advocate for their patients when they need to receive specialized care or procedures.

A New Way to Receive Health Care

Dr. Allen and her team of compassionate health care professionals are ready to assist you in reaching all of your health and wellness goals. If you are looking to make a real connection with your doctor, you are encouraged to look no further than New Freedom Family Medicine!

Current members welcome the quality and accessibility that the New Freedom Family Medicine team provides them with—including being able to reach Dr. Allen by phone, email, text and even video calls. Not only do patients save money on health care, but they find great value in expressing their health concerns to someone that genuinely listens and strives to get to know them as unique individuals.

Whether you visit her office in Hermann, MO, located at 127 East 4th Street, or her new location at 1380 High Street Suite 1, Washington, MO, you and your family are guaranteed to receive quality health care with a highly personal approach.

New Freedom Family Medicine is a Direct Primary Care office run by Dr. Jennifer Allen. The New Freedom Family Medicine team provides full-service, multi-generational family medicine and personal care under the direct primary care model.
